WARSAW!

Built up of memory, blood, and mortal wounds,
Thou art anew body, word, and sigh.
No throb of my heart, however strong it be,
Will move me as much as one stone of thine.

Thy holy name is like a word of prayer
For those shot down and those restored to freedom.
I shall fight battles for each of thy defeats —
That thou should be of triumph and of brick.

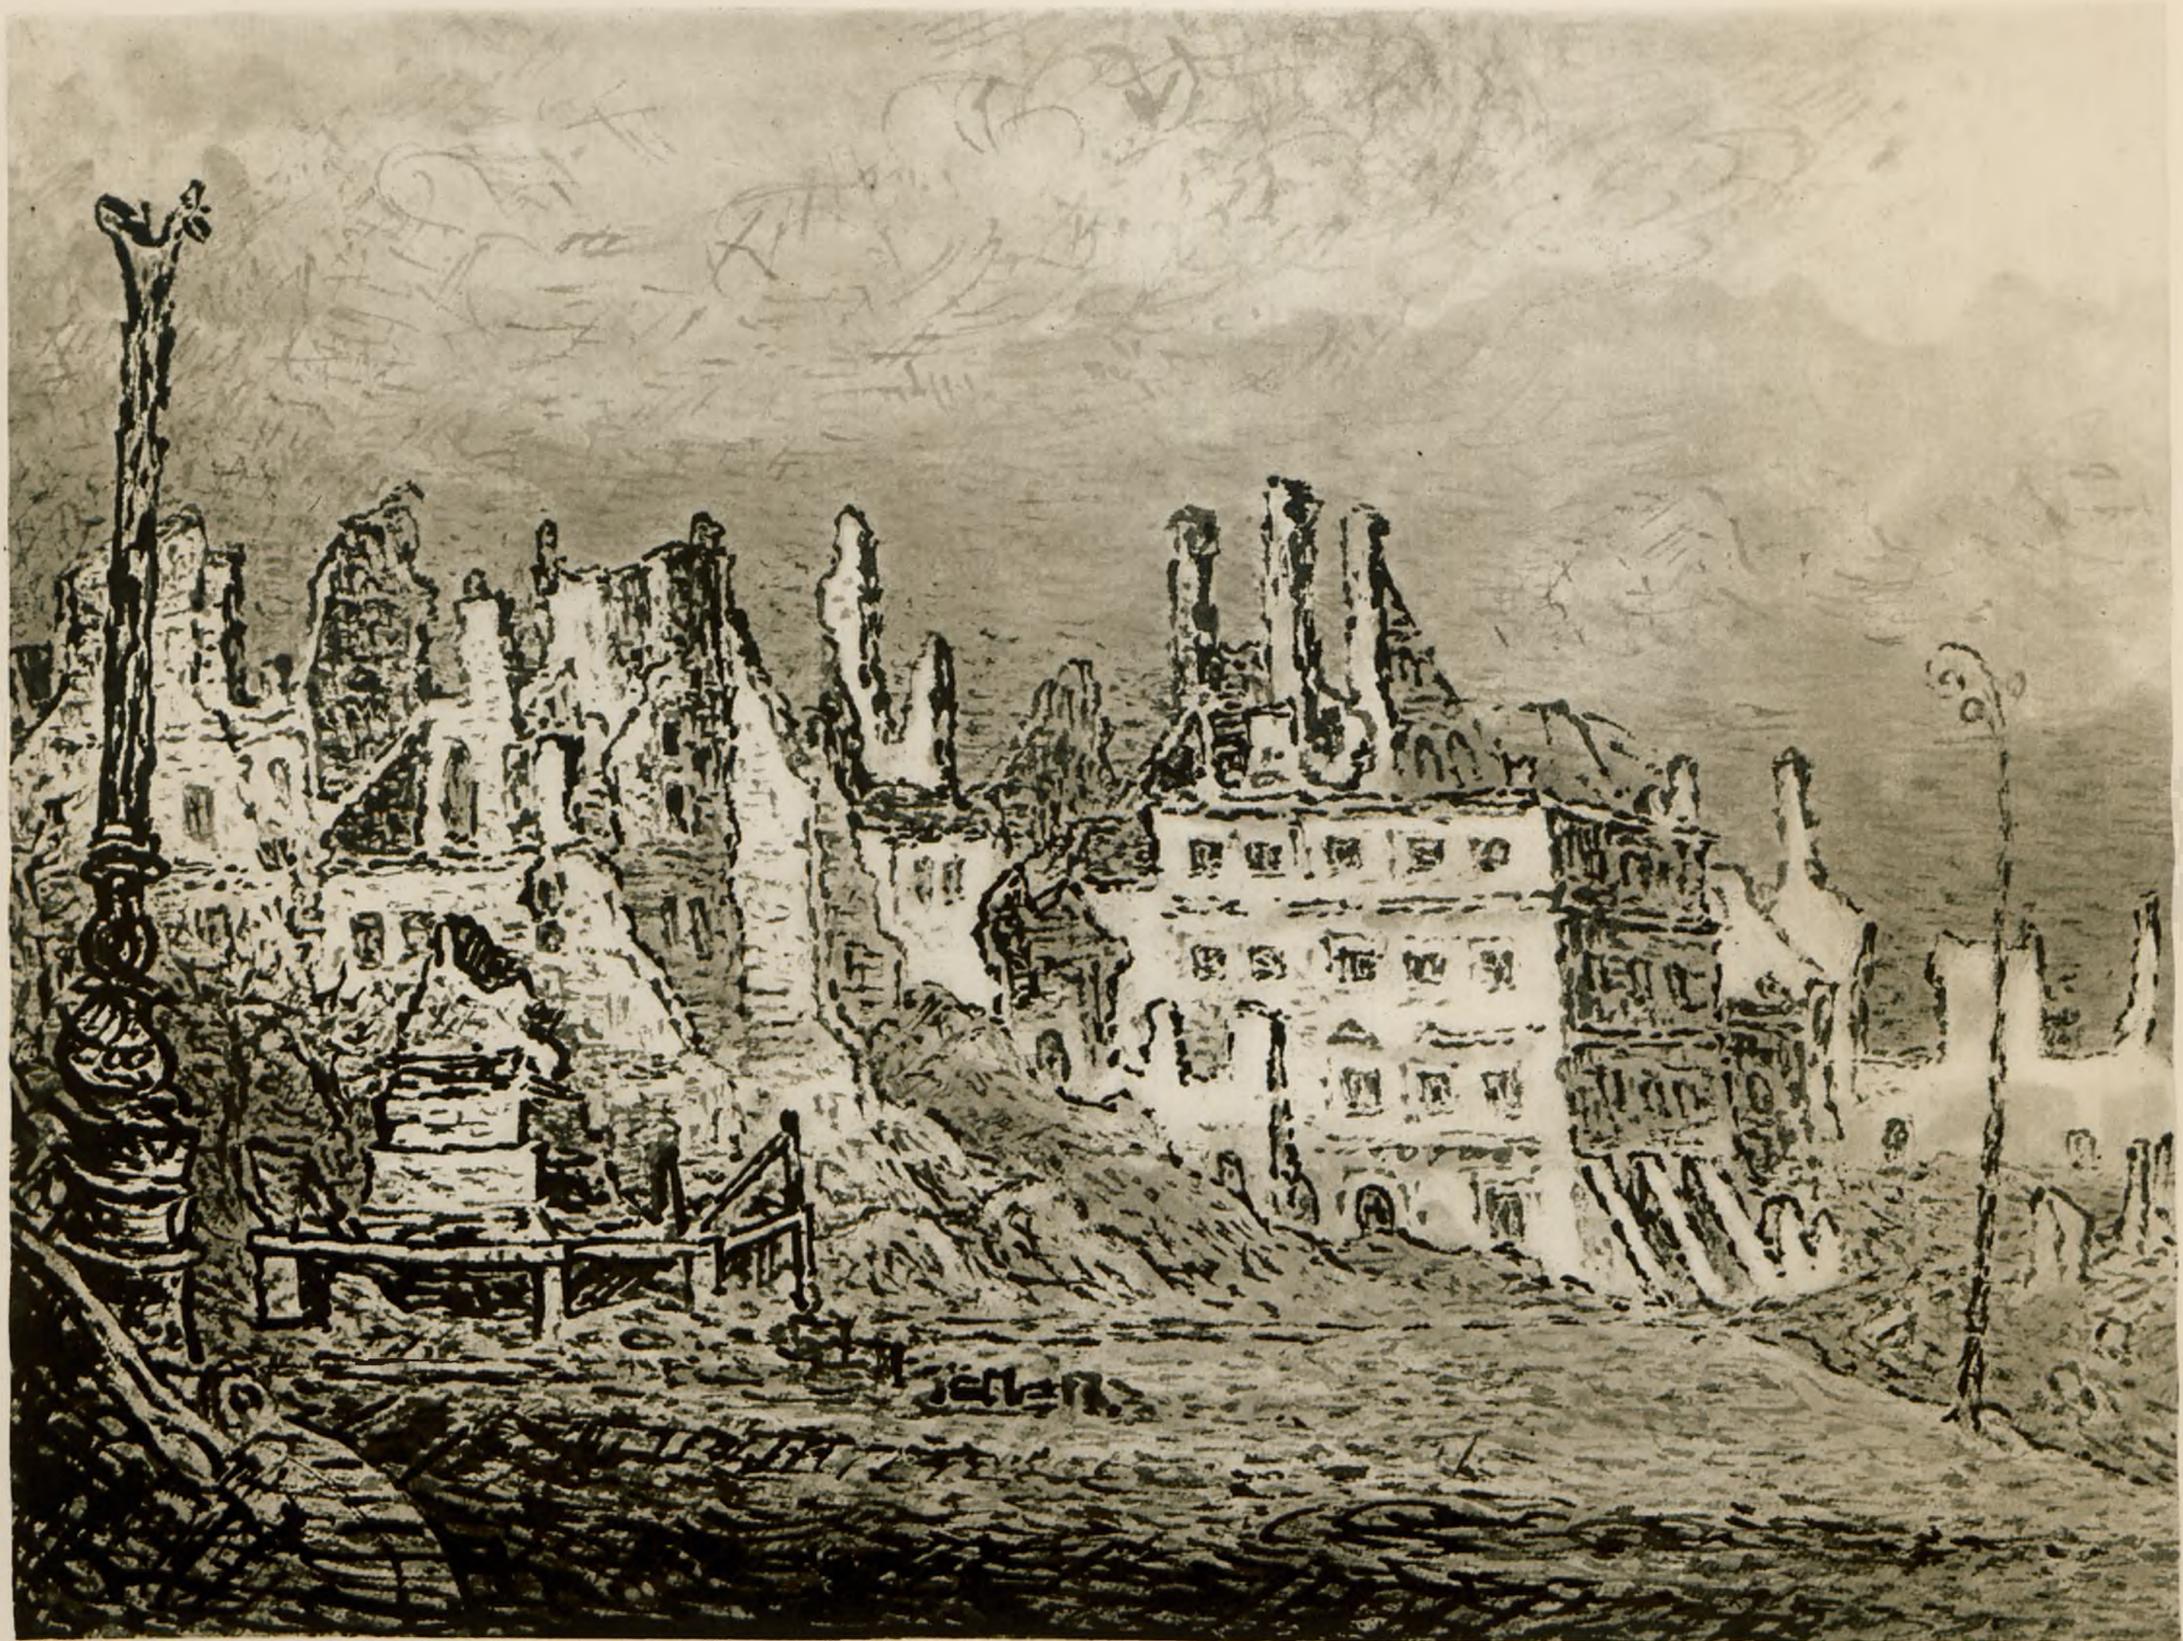

Because thy soil is Heaven more than Earth.
It nourished us with famine, but oftener still with thirst.
A fragment of thy walls is like a piece of bread,
And sheer inspiration — of Vistula's waves one drop.
